

00:18:23 Gillian Morrison: Hi everyone! Treaty - yes!!!

00:25:42 bernadette williams: Hi all from Bernadette

00:26:51 Avis Williamson: Hi all, from a 70s feminist

00:30:20 Fred Sim: Kaya from Nyoongar country.

00:31:21 Jane Osborne: Hi from Kurna country.

00:34:55 Robert Johnson: The documentary A Journey of a Thousand Miles is a great look at women UN peacekeepers in Haiti. Including as distinct from men peacekeepers!

00:35:24 Greg (Darwin, Australia): That can change. We indigenous Brits used to have 13 children in many families!

00:35:28 Chris Henderson: Wonderful to be hearing from Margot and you all. With thanks from WILPF and where I am in Jagera country.

00:36:07 lorene gottschalk: Where is the doco journey of a thousand miles available?

00:36:38 Noni McDevitt: Hi from Darug and Gundungurra country

00:38:21 Robert Johnson: Re doco: sorry, I don't know how to see it. I saw it at documentary centre screening with director in the Bronx (NY) in 2016. Wonderful.

00:38:40 Fred Sim: Episode 1 Season 4 of the Peabody nominated podcast "Scene on Radio" makes the point that in pre-settlement America, particularly the Cherokee, women formed a part of a council of the 7 tribes that made key decisions, in a sense, more representation than that of the settlers.

Highly recommend - <https://www.sceneonradio.org/rich-mans-revolt/>

00:40:11 Robert Johnson: A Journey of a Thousand Miles:
<https://www.imdb.com/title/tt4936006/>

00:41:01 Avis Williamson: Thank you Robert

00:41:26 Anne Robinson-Cast: Thanks.

00:43:33 Deborah Claydon: What have you experienced of the role of women in the governments of China and Russia?

00:44:53 Gillian Morrison: You might want to put that question in the QandA section via the icon to the left of the chat icon.

00:45:02 Fred Sim: Great question Deborah - ask it in the Q and A

00:49:45 Chris Henderson: I missed - what was that exhibition that Margot mentioned?

00:50:17 Anne Robinson-Cast: Swedish dads.

*Chat Log: Feminist Foreign Policy with Margot Wallström, former foreign minister of Sweden
Recorded live on 15 July 2021*

- 00:50:29 Chris Henderson: Thank you!
- 00:51:02 Julianne McKeon: Thanks Margot! I understand a bit more now.
- 00:52:37 Greg (Darwin, Australia): Even better: True democracy. Not our current aristocracy, with only one day of inefficient democracy every 3 years.
- 00:57:59 Fred Sim: Isn't the ideal way to approach it is to ask in all policy "how will this impact or involve women" rather than have a piecemeal approach?
- 00:59:57 Lili Golafshani: Good question, Fred
- 01:00:19 Avis Williamson: Fred, nothing the matter with doing both
- 01:00:29 Chris Henderson: Five pikes and a son.....great anecdote.
- 01:06:26 Mark Fetterplace: 50% wome in politics is fair. Also it means we are using all our talent, not half.
- 01:10:50 Anne: Agreed. We need to recognise that women's views and approaches add to rather than divide the sum f knowledge.
- 01:11:35 Lili Golafshani: Wikipedia is so sexist
- 01:11:48 Greg (Darwin, Australia): At least Wikipedia isn't edited by 6 old Anglo blokes, like all the classic encyclopedias!
- 01:14:28 Shirley Randell: Good to see you on this Michelle. Great question
- 01:15:32 Chris Henderson: Thank you for your example and for helping to forward the conversation. May we see positive influence of this in future in our country.
- 01:15:56 Chris Henderson: Thanks to all and for the book.
- 01:16:14 Michelle Imison: Thanks to all involved for a great session!
